Bradley Unkeless' entire legal career has been devoted to courtroom litigation. As a Senior Trial Attorney for the Hartford Insurance Company for more than two decades, and recently with Keating Wagner Polidori Free, P.C. Mr. Unkeless realized the intrinsic value of resolving claims prior to trial via alternative dispute resolution. Beginning in the early 2000's, Mr. Unkeless has been selected to serve as a mediator and/or arbitrator in the resolution of a broad array of disputes. Mr. Unkeless' extensive background informs his ability to fully comprehend the complexities of litigation and the leverage points of both sides of a case. He keeps the parties engaged, knows when to talk and when to listen.

BRADLEY UNKELESS, ESQ.

It is Bradley's strongly held belief that resolving a legal dispute prior to trial and/or administrative hearing is as a general proposition in the parties' best interest. Without alternative dispute resolution, the courts as a practical matter would be overwhelmed. As a Senior Trial Attorney, Bradley was involved in countless mediations and/or arbitrations. As a private mediator, Bradley has found insurance claims adjusters value his input by virtue of the fact he was formerly employed in the industry. Bradley has a particular expertise in negotiating workers compensation liens in third party litigation. Having worked closely with claims adjusters for over two decades, Bradley possesses an intimate knowledge regarding insurance adjustment.

With over three decades of involvement in alternative dispute resolution, Bradley has developed and refined the necessary skill set to mediate a dispute to successful conclusion. This involves treating all parties with the utmost of respect, listening closely to the articulated positions, carefully analyzing the elements of the dispute and assisting the parties to achieve a realistic settlement factoring in the applicable facts and law.
